

Why Reform Is Non-Negotiable

I was arrested in 2020 over chalk slogans. Washable. Harmless. My friends wrote a few messages on the pavement, nothing permanent, no damage done.

I was paraded through the city centre in tight handcuffs that left red marks for days, then thrown into a cell for 15 hours, checked on maybe twice, and dumped in a holding van to be driven home. No warning. No dignity. Just punishment by process.

A second time, I was arrested for breaching bail by buying a sandwich. I'm diabetic and hypertensive. If I don't eat every few hours, I collapse. I was transiting via bus, passing through a restricted zone. I needed food, so I made a decision to stay alive. That earned me another 16 hours in custody. No handcuffs this time, but I was made to get an Uber home at my own expense.

When I complained? They upheld everything.

No fault found. No wrongdoing admitted. Just a polite brush-off.

This wasn't public safety. This was systemic humiliation. And that's why I believe in this reform. Because I've lived it, and I know we can do better.

This policy isn't theory. It is lived. And it will fix what they pretended wasn't broken.

Policing & Crime Reform Policy

1. Reinstate 24/7 staffed police stations no more locked doors and yellow phones during emergencies.
2. Reduce holding times to a max of 6 hours unless formally charged. No more 24-hour psychological punishment cells.
3. Automatic deletion of DNA, fingerprints, and all data upon Not Guilty/No Further Action unless for crimes like murder.
4. End politically correct policing one standard of justice regardless of race, religion, or creed.
5. Rebalance two-tier policing no special treatment for protesters, religious groups, or cultural mobs.
6. Recriminalize serious drug dealing (excluding weed) with firm sentencing and local impact review.
7. Prison reform:
 - End games consoles, painted cells, and luxury amenities.
 - Ban microwaved and pre-packed meals introduce real, nutritious cooking.
 - Allow consensual prisoner relationships, incl. with staff, as long as no preferential treatment is involved.
 - Ban deferred sentencing and equalize sentencing regardless of gender or parental status.
 - Allow low-risk prisoners supervised day release for funerals and family matters.
 - Prison work to earn stipends: 5/day dignified, not exploitative.
8. Ban internal police 'future risk' registers for innocent people.
9. Serious offenders (rape, terror, etc) = no early release. Full sentence served.
